9 of 9 people found the following review helpful. not hard enough By AndykenI did not think these puzzles were difficult enough for me. If you are a crossword person who anticipates the Saturday puzzle, and if you always do it in ink..think twice. You may be disappointed. But they're fun..10 of 10 people found the following review helpful. Too easy! By Helen, Port Orchard Sorry. They're not hard at all. I was expecting a real challenge, but for the most part, it's just filling in squares. 7 of 7 people found the following review helpful. Not that hard By L. Ulvang Some of the puzzles are real posers, but others are ones I can do quickly. I like hard puzzles that I have to ponder over after I've turned out the light, and this book doesn't offer as many as I hoped it would.

Crossword lovers are always on the lookout for a challenge something rough enough and tough enough to give their mental muscles a real workout. These 75 puzzles fit the bill. With clues that range from geography and technology to popular culture and witty wordplay, it pushes solvers to search every nook and cranny of their brain. Adding to the fun, almost all the crosswords have a stimulating theme like the sci-fi fun-filled "Roswell"; "Homophone Humor"; or "Award-Winning Roles." And the final puzzle tops off the collection with a real skill-tester. Can you complete it? We say no but it's up to you to prove us wrong! There's so much entertainment here, who could resist?

About the Author John M. Samson has edited over 250 puzzle books for Simon Schuster's Crossword series and has had several daily and Sunday crosswords published in The New York Times. He recently authored puzzle books for ARE YOU SMARTER THAN A 5th GRADER? (Harper Collins). John's puzzles have appeared on the back of a Kellogg's cereal box, on the side of a tall building for Metro-North Railroad, in a tree inhabited by Keebler elves, in a keystone for the H. J. Heinz Company, in a heart for Longevity magazine, on an album cover for a rock group, and in a three-page centerfold for Golf Digest. John's other pursuits include writing for the stage, screen, and television. He lives in a sometimes-sleepy village in Central New York. Sam Bellotto Jr. has been making puzzles professionally since 1979 in the Sunday New York Times Magazine. Today he contributes regularly to all the major crossword puzzle markets, including The New York Times, and also does a weekly crossword feature for high-profile newspapers and magazines. Bellotto's company, Crossdown, develops word puzzle computer games and software as well as the puzzles themselves. Crossdown has garnered the top People's Choice Award from the Educational Software Cooperative (ESC) four times between 1998 and 2004.
