Jason A. Engle : Pathfinder Map Pack: Cave Tunnels before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Pathfinder Map Pack: Cave Tunnels:

C. Rhodes I own a dozen of these Map Packs, produced over the past five years (older ones are not laminated). I will be buying several more. Paizo's products are superior. I do own two of the Flip Mats, and find those more difficult to work with unless you have a clear Plexiglas/Acrylic covering over them. I prefer these card stock tiles much more as I can CUSTOMIZE the scene for the setting or play space, the flip mats require more table space. These can combine with other sets as well and thus open MANY MORE OPTIONS. Do know that, not being covered they may move during play incidentally. I would gladly take that versus the thicker DnD boxed map tiles as the Map Pack requires much less to readjust. The ARTWORK easily compares to them, and thus make a better product overall. I use both figures (metal/plastic) and Steve Jackson's Card Board Heroes (with stands) but prefer the latter. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. One of better map packs, if you get Cave Chambers as well. By J. Childress Caven Tunnels and Cave Chambers are some of the few Pathfinder Map Packs I'd actually recommend. They're generic enough to be reusable for many adventures. That said, you'll need two of each pack if you want to make dungeons that don't have unintended dead ends. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. they are a great time saver By Shoredoc As all of the Map Packs, they are a great time saver. Just make sure you check out the back of the box to make sure there are enough actual cave sections for you...that's my one complaint...lot of redundant cave tunnels (but, after all, that is the map pack name)!
